Farmers are all busy cutting grain this week. The crop is earlier than it was last year, and considerable wheat and barley has already been cut. While the straw is short, owing to the long dry spell, still the yield is good, and the crops in the Red Deer district are up to the average, and many farmers claim they will have the best crop in their history.

SYLVAN LAKE NOTES

The past season has been one of the best in the history of the lake. All the cottages have been filled, and hundreds have been camping on the shores of the lake.

A great many Calgary visitors have been at the lake this summer. One of the most attractive places on the lake is occupied by the Naval Brigades of Alberta, and the boys attending have had the time of their lives. For the first two weeks in July over 40 boys from Edmonton attended the camp and during the second two weeks 68, including leaders, were present from Calgary.

The boys had all the usual swimming, fishing and games. In addition, the special prize offered to the boys by D. J. Young was won by Earl Newcombe, and the prize for the most popular member of the camp was won by Seaman Volt, formerly of the Canadian Navy.

After the boys left, the Girls' Brigade occupied the ground for two weeks. This was the first brigade of girls in Canada to attend a camp during the summer months. It was a great success, and many of the girls did not want to go home when the time came to leave. Many outings, fishing trips, picnics, etc., were arranged for, and practically all the girls learned to swim before going home.

Miss Eileen Dunn won the special prize given by D. J. Young, president of the Calgary branch of the Navy League.

The camps were presided over by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irvine. Reg. Rose and W. H. Mitchell were the instructors for the boys, and Mr. Mitchell, who was accompanied by Mrs. Mitchell, instructed the girls.

The camp had a large number of visitors during the past two or three weeks. Among those from Calgary were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Clancy, Mrs. George May, Miss Edith May, Cecil May, Mr. Timmon, Mr. and Mrs. Berksdale, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Watson, Mr. H. Ford, business manager of the Alberta, and Mrs. Ford, Mr. Becker, of the Swift Canadian, and Mrs. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Sankster, Mrs. McKinney, Mr. W. H. Hickman, of the Ocean Acclimation Co., Mr. Hillecks, Miss Victoria Collins, Mr. Collins and Mr. Wren Collins, and many others from various parts of the province.

Mr. W. H. Brooks looked after the cooking department, and also gave instructions in swimming.

The camp was held under the auspices of the Navy League of Canada, Alberta Division, of which P. Burns is president and J. A. Irvine secretary and treasurer.

Other visitors: Austin Hoggar and wife, Mr. and Mrs. T. Owen Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Tansley, Mr. and Mrs. Bewick.

For ambulance (Stone's) call 172, 173.

Miss Colman is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fulton.

Mrs. McClure and Miss Allen are the guests of Mrs. H. Willson.

Mrs. Perigo and her son John, of Beloit, Ill., is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. A. Moore.

There will be a dance in the Ridgeview school house on Friday evening, August 27th. Brevardly invited. Ladies please bring refreshments.

All representatives of the various organizations on the Memorial and Community Building Committee are requested to attend a meeting at the city hall on Friday evening.

MONEY.

Money, to become a Divine benediction, must be well earned, well held, and well spent.

Well earned. Here we cut to the quick of the economic and social question. The world needs to look to the ways in which it gains its money. Whatever is gained by extortion, chance, or trickery, is tainted with the slime of the pit. There can be no honesty in wealth unless it has been honestly earned, and a just equivalent rendered in return for it. It must be well held. And its only true holding is that of stewardship.

It is a radical principle of Christianity that all we possess we hold as stewards. We have nothing save that we have received. And in this time of world-desire for riches at any price, this word must be pressed at all costs. Men have forgotten the truth of stewardship toward God and men. It must be well spent. Money is meant to be spent and not hoarded. Yet nothing is liked less by money than the idea of spending, save upon themselves. This is probably because the idea is associated with "parting" with a possession. This is a false estimate of true spending.

When spending is real, it becomes a saving. This is the thought of St. Paul in more than one passage. "Not soverly sparingly shall reap sparingly." If men can come to see this radical truth, it will change entirely their outlook upon life. Money in this view becomes a living thing, capable of a benediction and vital reproduction and augmentation. We need the view that great causes resemble soil which cries for the seed, and that in proportion we respond to the cry we ensure a great harvest.

SOVIET ARMIES WIPED OUT

London, August 26.—Polish troops Wednesday after hard fighting captured the fortress of Ostroleka, 22 miles southeast of Lomza, and forced a passage of the Narew river, the Central News Warsaw correspondent

Thursday morning says it is officially stated in the Polish capital today.

Warsaw, August 26.—Soviet troops are reported to be concentrating in great numbers along the Beresina river, where the recent offensive against Warsaw was begun, and military observers here are speculating as to the possibility that they may launch an attack against the central Polish front. It is believed possible the Bolshevik forces may make a stand in the event the Poles continue their pursuit of the retreating Soviet armies eastward, between the Bug river on the south, and Grodno on the north.

Reports received in Warsaw late Thursday continued to tell of Polish forces closely pursuing the retreating Bolshevik forces on various fronts. SOVIET ARMIES SAID TO BE WIPED OUT. The destruction of the Bolshevik armies now may be considered complete, according to advice received here. Of the host which swept down on Warsaw, nothing is left but 30,000 fugitives. The Poles have taken 80,000 prisoners thus far, but what is more important they have captured great quantities of guns and materials. It is considered probable that the Soviets employ all their available resources, and in their present condition, Russian industries will take a long time to replace them.

NO EQUIPMENT. Consequently, if the Soviets are able to find effective with which to seek to restore the fortunes of their arms, lack of equipment will make them without military value. During the past three days there has been heavy fighting in the direction of Bialystok. The losses have been heavy on both sides. On August 23, the Poles carried all the passages of the river.

FRONTIER OCCUPIED. The Prussian frontier as far as Mysyniec is now occupied by the Poles. All the Red troops west of the line Ostroleka-Mysyniec have been captured. The exact number of cannon abandoned is not yet known. Detachments of cavalry and infantry which escaped proceeded northward along the line of the lakes and marshes between the fortresses of Osnoviec and Grodno.

Prodding by the regrouping of the Polish army, the Reds again invaded Galicia. General Budenny made a dash for Lomza, but his best defeated and is in flight. Another detachment crossed the Dniester and occupied Stryke. This detachment sought to destroy the Borszys oil wells, but was driven off by local workmen.

In the region of Chelm, a Bolshevik attack was repelled by troops to the right of the Bug.

"ALL THE BOLSHIEVSKI RESERVES ARE GONE."

Warsaw, August 6.—The Polish war minister, General Smolowski, declares that four Bolshevik armies have been completely defeated on the northern Polish front. They consisted of 250,000 troops.

The minister estimates that the number of Bolshevik killed exceeds 40,000. Already 50,000 prisoners have been taken, and 50,000 more, he declares, will be gathered in before the end of the week.

On Monday the greater part of the Red troops surrounded in the "Niwa-Giechamps" sector surrendered, the Poles capturing enormous supplies of all kinds.

When informed of the report that General Wrangel had 70,000 troops at his disposal, he replied: "If Wrangel is in a position to make an offensive this is the time to do it, as he has nothing before him, all the Bolshevik reserves being gone."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS AND CITIZENS

Ottawa, Aug. 10, 1920.

Mr. Jack Day, Red Deer, Alta.

Dear Mr. Day:—You will remember, no doubt, when Dr. Toimie was in Red Deer, you spoke to him about a spruce bud parasite which is giving trouble in the Red Deer district, and at that time I took a note of it and promised to get some information for you on the subject when we returned to Ottawa.

I have now taken the matter up with the Dominion Entomologist, and enclose herewith for your information a copy of a letter he has written me on the subject. You will note he gives particulars of certain mixtures which they have been recommending for controlling the pest referred to. I think possibly this information which Mr. Gibson gives in his letter will be of value to you, but if there is anything else you would like to know in this connection, and will advise me, I shall be glad indeed to do what I can to secure it for you with the least possible delay.

You also requested information regarding gaitre in lambs and calves, and I enclose a memorandum on this subject which has been furnished to me by our Assistant Live Stock Commissioner.

With kind regards, I am,
Yours faithfully,
T. J. LYNTON.

GOITRE
It is quite evident that the exact cause of this disease is not yet determined beyond doubt, but A. S. Alexander, in an article in the American

Sheep Breeder, stated as follows:

"Our experience and observation lead us to conclude that goitre is a disease of the ultra-domesticated sheep, most liable to attack in-bred, line-bred or even pure-bred animals, and particularly those which are improperly managed. In sheep long-bred and fed on the 'hot-house' plan, tendency to goitre inevitably becomes hereditary and we have seen many instances in which the lambs of a 'goitred' ram suffered from goitre at birth, the same being true of the progeny of similarly affected ewes, while the disease also may suddenly affect a crop of lambs from apparently 'goitreless' rams and ewes."

"The errors in management which seem to induce goitre in new-born lambs may be set down as the following: Lack of exercise in the open air as the most common cause; overfeeding of such pampered sheep; hot, badly ventilated, dirty stables, or any close stable too much used by the ewes in the winter season; worms; incomplete nutrition, such as tainting all of the requirements of the body; constipation; 'poisoning' of the system by toxins produced as the result of indigestion, constipation, unhealthy conditions of the liver, kidneys and skin and from certain varieties of feed; incestuous or consanguineous breeding and the mating of goitre-affected rams and ewes."

"Goitre" will be rare when every shepherd has learned and put into practice the simple and fundamental principle that exercise, every day of the year, is absolutely necessary for the sheep, and particularly for the pregnant ewe. In our northern states, as the winter is so long and cold, and snow often so deep that the temptation is to keep pregnant ewes indoors for weeks on end. That sort of mismanagement is deadly.

"Goitre" is but one of the penalties of unnatural life imposed upon the sheep by man, and he has only himself and his foolishness to blame for his "trials, tribulations and losses."

TREATMENT.

"It has been found that blood let from the enlarged gland sometime proves quickly effective, and in such cases it would be well to consult the local veterinarian before cutting. However, the wool should be clipped from the spot and the skin thoroughly painted with tincture of iodine. After the removal of the blood, inject into cavities, by means of a hypodermic syringe, one-half to one teaspoonful of a mixture of one part of compound tincture of iodine and two parts of freshly boiled water, or distilled water, the injection to be repeated two or three times, at intervals of 24 hours, if seen to be necessary. "Prevention is all-important, and in addition to avoiding the causes we have suggested and adopting better methods of feeding and management, affected animals should be discarded. The strongest ewes retained, and, as a strong, prepotent, nonkin ram from different district employed. Wherever possible, too, in districts where the disease is prevalent, it would be well to winter the ewes in a higher, healthier, or more bracing locality than the one in which they have been raised."

In the spring of 1918 at the Manitoba Agricultural College 50 per cent. of the lambs were goitred. During the winter of 1918 the ewes were fed one grain of potassium iodide each, per day, in their drinking water, and in the spring of 1919 no goitre was noticed. The following winter one-half the quantity of potassium iodide was fed and this last spring no goitre was apparent.

Undoubtedly, variety of feed and plenty of exercise out of doors will do much to keep the ewes in high-class condition, and, as quoted from Dr. Alexander, proper care has much to do with the difficulty in the west which you quote.

Yours very truly,
W. R. L., Assistant Commissioner.

Department of Agriculture,
Entomological Branch,
Ottawa, August 7th, 1920.

Mr. T. J. Lynton, Private Secretary,
Minister's Office, Dept. of Agriculture,
Ottawa, Ont.

Dear Mr. Lynton:—The insect which you refer to in your letter of the 4th instant, concerning which the Minister desires information, is, I think, one of the Red Spiders which have been troublesome on Spruce trees in Alberta, and respecting which I received a telegram from Dr. Toimie about the middle of July.

These Red Spiders are not, of course, insects, but they have been the cause of rather important injury in the west during recent years. The mixture which we have been recommending for controlling these Red Spiders is to spray the trees forcibly with a mixture made by dissolving half a pound of ordinary soap in one gallon of warm water and pouring this into two gallons of coal oil. The whole should then be churned violently for about five minutes. This makes a stock solution and when the mixture is required for use it should be diluted with nine-tenths its measure of warm water. There are, of course, mended for the control of these Red other mixtures which could be recommended, such as the proprietary mixture known as Black Leaf - 40, which is a 40 per cent. solution of Nicotine

Sulphate. It might, however, be difficult to purchase this mixture locally in Alberta, so I think the kerosene mixture would be preferable. For applying the mixture a spray pump, of course, is advisable.

Yours very truly,
Sgd. Arthur Gibson,
Acting Dominion Entomologist.

"C.E.F." CEASES TO BE; LAST RECORDS COMPLETED; FILED

Ottawa, August 26.—The Canadian expeditionary force is no more.

The fourteen N.C.O.'s who were employed to conclude the statistical work of the army yesterday wrote "30" on the concluding page of a mass of records covering every unit and every man who ever donned the Canadian uniform.

Just the number of records kept of every individual man would come as a surprise to even the soldier whose records they are. The militia department has original and duplicates of about twenty-one army forms relating to every one who served.

Asked what was going to be done with the thousand of apparently useless books and army forms, a militia department official stated that they would be carefully preserved and locked away.

We beg to announce the arrival of our First Fall Consignment of Northways "Shape-Keeping" Ready-to-Wear.

For your information we beg to pass on to you what they tell us of this season's styles.

SUIT COATS are longer in accord with the prevailing idea as to smartness. The coat is the chief feature this year, skirts being fairly plain with novelty pockets and belts. Pin tucks and silk braid and buttons are principally used for trimming. The collars are generally of the convertible type.

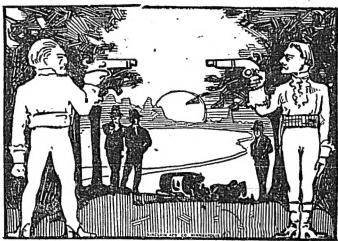

COATS may be worn belted or loose. One of the most prominent features for this fall and winter will be an extremely large cape collar. Silk twist stitching, furs and fur fabrics will be largely used for trimming. Owing to the prohibitive price of furs, plush and other fur fabrics, made in three-quarter length coats after leadin fur models, are likely to be much in demand. Very large collars will top these elegant appearing coats and when worn open, cling close to the shoulders giving a slender drooping shoulder line.

SKIRTS are all made on slender graceful lines, with a tendency to be fuller and relying somewhat on pleats to dispose of the width.

DRESSES are given their style character in many cases by the sample lines of a drop waist line known as the Sweater effect. For tailored styles full length sleeves will dominate. The three-quarter sleeve which usually flares at the elbow will be shown in dresses for afternoon wear. Sash effects and pleated skirts are likely to be popular.

We would be very pleased to show you these advance receipts, which have just been passed into stock.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 1st, 1920.

A GREAT RECORD.

Commenting upon Premier Meighen's speech at Stirling, the Toronto Mail and Empire rightly remarks that an utterance of this kind was needed to tone up public opinion and assure the people. It indicates that Mr. Meighen is the honest and fearless leader that the nation needs at the present critical period in its affairs. No observer of his past course in public life could doubt that he would be such a leader. Compared with the Stirling speech, how pathetically feeble are the sniping operations of Mr. Macdonnell King. Mr. Meighen appeals to the record of the Union Government, and what a marvellous record that is! The conquest of Canada's war business, the raising and equipping and steady reinforcing of the Canadian army; the demobilization of the forces; the gratuities, the pensions, the allowances to dependents of the fallen, the hospital care of the wounded, the civil re-establishment of returned men generally—these are matters in regard to which the Government challenges comparison with like war and reconstruction work in any other country. There is nothing apologetic about the Stirling speech. The Prime Minister is rightly proud of the Government's strong course for supporting the men at the front. With equal patriotism the Meighen government will do its duty in the face of any domestic enemies of the State, any disturbers of public order. On that point the Prime Minister speaks in the plainest language. He is right in his remark that 99 per cent of all the grumbling of recent times is base and harmless humbug. He stands for unity and national solidarity, for freedom of enterprise and for policies that have made the country what it is. The people will agree with him that "the old party alignments are pretty well grown over now." He is with the upbuilders and will resist with all his power the tearers down. Free traders and fiscal humbugs, as he says, make up the Opposition. The financial policy of his Government is to go no farther into debt, and its tariff policy is to keep Canadian workmen in Canada, but no interests, however powerful, will get more than these requirements call for.

THE UNIVERSITY'S PART IN THE WAR.

Edmonton Journal, August 26.
It is just a little over nine years since the first class was graduated at the University of Alberta, which was just getting fairly on its feet when the war broke out. There was an immediate and very large response to the call of duty overseas. It is scarcely believable that so young an institution could have an honor roll containing 126 names. This does not include the large number of men in the high schools who were ready to enter the university, but who joined the university institution instead. The enlistments included 25 members of the staff, 76 graduates and 331 undergraduates. Sixty-eight died in active service. Many decorations were won, including a Victoria Cross. This wartime activity, of course, involved serious interruptions in the university's normal work. The latter has now, however, been taken up with greatly renewed energy and a survey of the situation, here and elsewhere, makes stronger than ever the belief that in Edmonton we shall have, before many years, a seat of higher learning which will take a very high rank among those of the continent. Certainly, nowhere in Western Canada has so good a foundation been laid. At all stages the university has kept very closely touch with the general life of the province, and in no other part of the dominion. It is safe to say, has this relation been so thoroughly established. The great majority of Albertans are keenly interested in its work, and an appeal which is about to be made to them to assist in a project for commemorating the part which the university played in the war should be responded to generously.

A committee has been formed for this purpose. It hopes to raise the sum of $50,000. Of this from $15,000 to $20,000 is to be devoted to a physical memorial, while the balance is to provide scholarships to be awarded to the children of those who gave service overseas. But before these permanent plans are carried out, it is proposed to devote part of the money to an immediate and pressing need. There are many students whose course of studies were interrupted by the war and who need assistance if they are to graduate. For this purpose $10,000 will be required before the end of the present year. At the end of the last academic year 131 undergraduates had returned to Canada, and of these about 45 per cent had resumed their studies. All the graduates still being young, no one would look for any large contribution to the memorial fund from this source. The university is different from these institutions which have a history of scores or of hundreds of years behind them. If there is to be an adequate memorial it must be subscribed largely by those who have no direct connection with the university, but who, as public-spirited Albertans, appreciate what it and its representatives have done for the province. The graduate association has undertaken to raise $5,000, of which $2,000 has already been subscribed. This is an excellent beginning. It encourages the canvassing committee which is headed by Mr. James Ramsey, M.L.A., to proceed with an appeal to the body of citizens. Nothing in the nature of a whirlwind campaign is to be attempted. It is felt that the object is such that it only needs to be put before the people of Alberta clearly in order to secure the measure of support that is desired. Cheques are to be made payable to the University of Alberta War Memorial Fund and may be forwarded to the bursar of the university.

DROP IN PRICES OF COAL COMING IN U.S. SHORTLY

Washington, August 26.—A forecast of a tumble in coal prices was made by United States department of justice officials yesterday, coincident with the announcement of "renewed activities" in the campaign against coal profiteers. With production on the increase, the prediction was made that the coal market would follow sugar prices in a break in the near future.

Prices already have dropped at Baltimore, where the federal agents have started to gather evidence against an alleged combination of dealers who were declared to have boosted prices. A similar attack on profiteers has been ordered at Hampton Roads. Complaints have come from there frequently and from Baltimore it was said.

WASHINGTON LOOKS FOR RETAIL PRICE SLUMP IN THE FALL

Washington, August 27.—Retail prices, in the opinion of the federal reserve board, will decline slightly during the coming fall and winter months, and will slump next spring to still lower levels. Changes in the prices of raw materials, which were reported to have declined sharply during the past few weeks, will not show their effect, according to the board, in retail prices until early next spring.

THE NEWS WEEKLY SERMON

By Rev. G. D. Armstrong

Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.—John 15:12

These words sound like the comment of the evangelist upon the commandment of Jesus to his disciples, love ye one another as I have loved you, rather than the words of Jesus Himself. However it may be that as Jesus strengthened His faith in the principle of sacrifice, so we may recognize it as a law of nature, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone." So here His may have been expressing the ideal of His life, a love that sacrifices life for friendship sake. Strong as this statement, it hardly equals the utterance of Paul, "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us ungodly." We cannot conceive of any higher love than this, that one should die for his enemies, and to this the love of Jesus attained. Let us not forget that the love of Jesus was manifested within our humanity and that His death unfolds to us a revelation of humanity as truly as it does a revelation of the Divine. There is a gospel and a challenge for us in the words of our text.

A friends of mine made a statement the other day which startled me. We were discussing the hunger strike of Mayor McSweeney and considering its probable motive. Was it stubborn folly, deliberate suicide or martyrdom? And my friend remarked, "Only One has ever made a success of martyrdom." There is no doubt that Jesus deliberately chose for Himself the way of the Cross, and that the death of Jesus Himself has been to some foolishness to others an inexplicable enigma, but to those with insight into His motives it is the symbol of His power of God, the ideal of life. We will fail to appreciate all that the Cross of Jesus means, if we regard it as a unique experience in a personality essentially different from our own. Rather it is the Divine event which symbolizes forever the love of God; it interprets all history and solves all earthly problems. "The acknowledgement of God as God, the recognition of His authority and His power, the principle of sacrifice and suffering, of life through death, runs through all the revolutionary processes of history and is enshrined in all the life of mankind."

What has been the significance of these years of struggle through which we have passed? Why were men willing to endure the anguish of these years of tribulation? What have we learned?

"What did you see out there, my lad, That has set that look in your eyes? You went out a boy, you have come back a man, With strange new depths underneath your tan; What was it you saw out there, my lad, That set such depths in your eyes?"

"Strange things—and sad—and wonderful— Things that I scarce can tell—I have been in the sweep of the reaper's scythe— With God—and Christ—and hell. I have seen Christ doing Christly deeds; I have seen the devil at play; I have grinned to the sod in the hand of God. I have seen the godless pray. I have seen death blast out suddenly From a clear blue summer sky. I have slain like Cain with a blazing brain; I have heard the wounded cry. I have seen the devil in petticoats (Luring the souls of our men); I have seen great sinners do great deeds And turn to their sins again."

These words of Oxenham, so vividly descriptive of the war, have been descriptive of forces and facts which, any more or less true of the general life of mankind. These evils are with us, and the necessity for continuing ideals to overcome them is as great as ever they were.

We do not measure for those who have given their lives in the war. Rather we respond to the inspiring message of Rupert Brooke or of John McCutcheon. "Blow out ye bugles over the rich dead. There's none of these so lonely and poor or old, But dying has made us rarer gifts than gold. These laid the world away. Poured their hot hearts to carry the torches Gave up the years of work and joy. Blow, bugles, blow! They brought us for our dearth Holiness lacked so long, and love and pain. Honor has come back as a king to earth And paid his subjects with a royal wage. Nobleness walks in our ways again, and we have come into our heritage."

It is worth the price of sacrifice to have such a vision of life as these men have seen to carry the torches which they held high. Out of the travail of their soul they have seen, and are satisfied. But the end is not the ideal for which they struggled and died and are not yet triumphant. The purpose of the Christ is not yet fulfilled. The weapons of warfare have been somewhat changed, but the struggle still goes on.

Most of us have learned the uselessness of a sacrifice that spends itself in death. But we have not yet learned how to give ourselves in a sacrifice that expresses itself in living helpfulness. We have yet to realize a Christian community in which men and women of independent thought and real genuine personal experience shall give themselves in a concerted effort for the common good. We stand aloof from each other, each impelled to go his own way in a spirit of personal independence that is hardly less than selfishness. We gather to other in groups which separate us by differences of name and creed and race. We have not yet grasped the significance of Jesus' idea of world citizenship. We but dimly perceive the kingdom of God and have not yet justly to claim possession of that spirit, which identifies us with those who in all ages have laid down their lives, that life for all may be made more abundant. Our problems deepen but our faith still persists. The Christ is challenging us to follow Him. Our faith in Him is not mere want to dogmatize long held in veneration but in loyalty to a Person, whose voice we have heard, whose sufferings we have seen and of whose ultimate triumph we cannot doubt.

SITUATION IN IRELAND IS ACUTE

Sinn Féin Seize Control of Many Local Governments in Towns.

Dublin, August 27.—The Sinn Féin
in many towns in Ireland have seized control of the local governments under the cover of republican guards.
Financial schemes are being floated in connection with giving them control of $400,000 of public money.

REACHES ACUTE STAGE

London, August 27.—The Evening
Standard's Dublin correspondent
says:

"Divisions of opinion between the Irish executive and the cabinet have reached an acute stage, culminating in Sir Hamar Greenwood's visit to Premier Lloyd George at Limerick.
The viceroy's position, as well as that of the responsible members of the executive, is in the balance, and it is said here that the next few days will bring definite announcement of a more liberal conciliatory policy in Ireland, or resignations that must wholly alter the personnel of the Irish administration."

"The fact is that Sir Hamar and other hunger strikers have been more or less the cause of precipitating the present crisis, but the situation has been ripening for months."

"Viscount French and his counsellors frankly oppose the policy of drastic repression, and, while fully prepared to enforce law and order,
they hold that conciliatory measures should immediately be given a more particular form than hitherto. While Sir Hamar Greenwood sympathizes with this view, and is prepared to support it, he feels that his share in the Irish administration must necessarily take its direction from the cabinet."

SOVIET OFFENSIVE NOW DISCOUNTED

Paris, August 27.—Bolshevik reaction against Polish armies along the front east of Warsaw is not expected, at least for the present, by Gen. Weyand, who is credited with the war cabinet's defense of the Polish capital and hurled the Soviet armies back from that city, according to the Warsaw correspondent of the Pott Pariser.

Gen. Weyand is quoted as saying the Poles should not advance too far eastward, but should entrench themselves along a line that can be easily held, so that they may be able to resist any effort on the part of Soviet Russia to bring overwhelming forces against them in the future.

BLAME PRODUCER FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

Toronto, August 26.—Premier Blaine, at the opening of the Wholesale Grocers' Convention at the King Edward hotel today, said that since the war Canada had been worse confounded than ever. Everywhere there was a wall of distress, "even in our land, where plenty abounded."

"We are pursuing a course of extravagance and shiftlessness. The shock of war seems to have disturbed the moral and industrial fibre of the world," said Mr. Blaine. The high cost of living has been largely attributed to the distributor, the so-called "middleman," while as a matter of fact the responsibility rests chiefly with the producer, said Mr. Blaine.

"In my experience the distributor actually made a lower percentage of profit on his turn of bringing the warrent when the address of welcome was given by the lieutenant-governor."

More than 125 wholesale grocers
from all parts of Canada were present when the address of welcome was given by the lieutenant-governor.

The Aftermath of Action

(By Henry Chas. Suter.)

IS THIS THE END?

Masses of men went marching into
the fields of Flanders facing disease, disaster and death. What were their hopes? It was but a simple psychology of theirs. They saw their countries menaced by a rising war machine,
of a most brutal type of militarism with its swaggering bullying infringing with fire and sword the great liberties and policies of civilized mankind.

As that struggle dragged on, new ranks of youth were mowed down in the same fields where rotted the bodies of their brothers, and they wondered whether the Germans were the only brutal exploiters of this barbarism and saw a lot of slavish obedience to its commands in the philosophy of military force at the back of all European nations, and were persuaded that the whole structure of modern civilization was upheld by armed forces bound together in secret compacts without even the knowledge and consent of the men who were compelled to serve as
"cannon fodder."

So, as they looked away from the Germans, they watched the statesmen, diplomats, newspaper men, confidential men, financiers, breeders of financiers of wealth, leaders of labor,
and beheld much of the same bullying and bullying going on there. They saw that here behind the lines, and behind their backs, there was going on villainy, stupidity, poisonous philosophy, betrayal and falsity. So they were ready to condemn all this, even as they fought in Flanders, when they saw such beastliness. They knew these men were a little less to blame
than the Germans for the German were more efficient in the use of that evil power that held the people's mind in bondage and their activities slavish. So our soldiers said, "We will go forward in spite of this to the end, yes, to the bitter end, believing that after the end there will be a beginning." This was their hope, the hope that buoyed them up in those treacherous days. They hoped for the new democracy that would sweep away this false egoism, this vaunted pride of militarism, the old hatreds,
the spell words and fictitious phrases,
and would establish a new relationship of brotherhood in all civilization
based upon a mutual interest of service and welfare instead of upon fear and force.

They knew that they must make an end of that old regime ere they could have a beginning of the new. But, is this the end of the old? The passionate hope among the returned masses of men after the armistice and during peace negotiations, centred around the establishing of such a peace that would liberate them from the old crushing burdens of militarism and the old fears which made them obey that tyranny. They looked forward to the march away of the nations from the jungle hatred and massacre to the sunlight of comradeship and common sense. We are compelled to acknowledge that the Peace Conference with its much abused Treaty has not secured that boon yet for mankind. Instead, we see the nations falling into the old fatal diplomacy, struggling to share the spoils of victory and looking for the advantages of military victory
rather than seeking the future safety of the world, thus practicing the very thing our boys fought to destroy. Is this to be the end?

Our mission was to realize the divine mission entrusted to them with regard to this and many other matters of human relationship, but in the moment of crisis they sank back into the moras of fear, suspicion, greed, intolerance and rivalry. Good gra-tious, can't we remember that their boys were forgetting that there was England or United States or Canada or France and stood their ground or fell, thinking of a World Empire?
Did not the boys discover the same qualities in the human nature of all the nations that fought side by side?
Then why do civilized people continue to fling mud at each other like dirty lot of gutter snipes?

Then again in our newspapers
there are the taunts of one answered by the fibes of another, bitter speeches of statesmen all printed with stinging satire from others, crying after each other like a simple lot of schoolboys, uttering provocative epithets to score off each other, or for the sake of paltry political debates.
Can't these childish campaigns of hate be stopped? Have we forgotten how the war started? All this sort of talk and scribble is a menace to our national life, a prevention of our world pact of peace, making disagreement among masses of the people.
After all that struggle—is this to be the end?

THE KILLS

REPAIR PADS

Kill them all, and the germs too. 10c a packet at Druggists, Grocers and General Stores.

Old Dan, had put it squarely up to him when luck had failed.

All the gamesters, the solid worth, the loyal courage of the boy rushed to the cry of his friend. There came a shout from down the track. They had seen him gather himself, seen him fairly leap after the tiring dates.

The long legs came onward like a greedy machine. Bates heard the whirring cry and supposed that it was the Forest coming on. But Bates thought no more than he was doing when he saw a haggard face at his elbow and knew that it was this unknown who had raced him stride for stride. It was a matter of sand now—a case of which could outbait the other.

For ten yards they ran neck and neck and almost staggered into the cheering ally that led to the finish. Bates had St. Jo's or Norton sent up to meet his fate, and his head went back in acute distress. The air was hot; it burned his dry mouth. Then he saw the rear, straddled the sharp line. "You, Corbin! For St. Jo's!"

Old Sloan had applied the lash. He, Corbin, was running for St. Jo's. With every falling ounce of strength he pulled himself together. Ahead, he saw another waiting to catch him. Head, a white, unbroken string crossed the finish. Three more long strides with power behind them! One. Bates met it gamely. Two. The white face grew whiter. Three! He dashed struck the string, broke it. He and outbought Bates by six separate inches.

Dan de Forest, as he finished a year ago, was waiting seconds later, threw both hands over his head. "My luck's ill good," he cried, "but I've transferred it to old St. Jo's!"

Might have saved $18,500

A LADY desired to transfer the proceeds of a policy of life insurance from one bank to another in the city of New York. The insurance amounted to $18,500—and was probably the product of many years of self-denial on the part of both husband and wife.

This money was lost "somewhere" between the two banks. It is a great pity that the amount was not transferred by cheque, but the beneficiary preferred the cash, and it was lost.

Had the Insurance been paid to her in monthly instalments in place of a lump sum there would have been no possibility of disaster, and the unfortunate lady would have saved $18,500. We issue policies payable by monthly instalments throughout life, $40 being absolutely guaranteed.

The same loss might have been incurred in the case of an ill-advised investment. Many fraudulent schemes are offered to life insurance beneficiaries. Why risk the money when our system of payment by monthly cheques guarantees the enjoyment of every dollar of the benefit.
